Capable of adding a hint of woodland enchantment to gardens, loggias and interior spaces, the twining details on the Creekside Table/Bench were realized with time-honored faux bois construction techniques. The graceful branching makes this artistic piece read a veritable sculpture in a space; and yet it is so strong, it can stand up to the elements. This table with its timeless appeal has been treated to a rustic Portland finish. We also offer a Creekside console table. Hairline cracks occur and are part of the natural beauty and uniqueness of each piece. These are part of the natural curing process of concrete, but they do not affect durability or structural integrity because of the steel frame underneath. The finish will vary and range from gray to brownish to greenish. The finish will continue to change over time, and over the first few months it will darken slightly. Each piece is created by hand, and the texture and appearance of the concrete can vary.
